

The Incredible Linn Sondek CD12

Let's cut to the chase: How can a CD player like the CD12 possibly justify a price tag of $20,000? Not easily, but if it could ever be done, Linn has done it with their new masterpiece. Don't take our word for it, practically every reviewer on the planet has proclaimed the CD12 to be the most musical CD playback device ever! Even representatives from other respected high-end manufacturers we have spoken to say it's the best there is. And we agree.

But this player is not only the most expensive and best sounding player in the world, it is also the most dangerous. Dangerous because if you make the mistake of spending too much time with it, you won't be able to live happily without one. Already, we have had customers ask to hear it for just one or two minutes, after which they start thinking aloud about ways to come up with the necessary $20K and hide the purchase from their loved ones.

We don't want to encourage anyone to part with more money than they can afford, which is why Linn makes the wonderful $3500 Ikemi. But if you can possibly afford it, you must have a CD12.

7/2002