

A Better Audio & Home Theater Experience

VANDERSTEEN

Dimensional Purity

Our longest unbroken association is with Vandersteen Audio dating to 1979. Richard Vandersteen had only been in business a few years, but his commitment to principles, both in loudspeaker design and business, was readily apparent. Based in Hanford, California it is a family business in every sense of the word, both from the numbers of Vandersteens working at the company and the extended family feel the employees enjoy. The company slogan is Dimensional Purity which certainly describes the salient sonic characteristic of the loudspeakers, but fails to allude to the other important aspect of everything they manufacture: incredible value.

The Vandersteen price list has to drive rival speaker manufacturers crazy and yields a line of class performance leaders in every category. No speaker leaves the design table without the phase coherent, time aligned, and minimum baffle goals having been met, but that is just the beginning. Exhaustive testing of prototypes which carries through to the craftsman-intensive build process followed by rigorous quality assurance mean Vandersteens arrive and perform uniformly exceptionally.

This fanatical attention to quality is also reflected in the trickle down of flagship technology to improve the rest of the line and most models are upgradeable as this occurs guaranteeing your investment for years to come. Putting to rest the argument over speakers for music versus speakers for theater, Vandersteens simply make great, engaging sound. What sounds you choose to listen to are up to you. Whether your price range puts you in the incomparable 1C or allows ownership of a Model Five A, you will be exhilarated every time you listen.
